are not voters. We quote:

"While it is the polier of the Republican party to encourage the oppressed of other nations and offer them facilities for becoming useful and intelligent citizens in the legal definition of the term, the party has never contemplated the admission of a class of servile people who are not only unable to comprehend our institutions, but indisposed to become a part of our national family or to embrace any higher civilization than their own. To admit such immigrants would be only to throw a retarding element into the very path of our progress. Our legislation should be amply protective against this danger, and if not sufficiently so now should be made so to the full extent allowed by our treaties with friendly powers." WEDNESDAYJULY 23, 1884.

Mr. Logan's Letter of Acceptance. We publish this morning, as in duty bound, and not because it is really worth the space it occupies. Mr. Logan's letter accepting the nomination of the Republican National Convention for the office of Vice-President of the United States. We did not hesitate to speak of Mr. BLAINE's letter in such terms of praise as we thought it deserved; and we are not conscious that we entertain any prejudice against Mr. LOGAN that might cause us to judge him harshly. We think, therefore, that we do not use too strong an adjective when we say that as contrasted with Mr. BLAINE's strong and able letter, Mr. Logan's is contemptible. Mr. BLAINE writes forcibly and correctly, not to say elegantly. Mr. Logan writes neither forcibly nor correctly. Mr. BLAINE can always find the very word needed to express his meaning. Mr. Logan is singularly infelicitous in his choice of words, No one will suspect that anybody else than Logan himself had a hand in the production of his letter. His pirtitudes are simply amusing, whilst his highest flights are ridiculous. Read it for yourselves and see whether or not we have done bim injustice. He follows Mr. BLAINE in speaking of the tariff, in what he says about arbitration, the South American republics, &c., &c., and in other respects. But at what a distance. He rings the changes upon the "necessitles" of life. He declares that our form of government is "unique" "among the nations of the world." What have we to do with the systems of other countries? asks Mr. Logan in effect. Why should we "borrow systems from them?" "Borrow systems" is good," as says Polonius.

It is no more than a quarter of a century, says Mr. Logan, since "the fundamental creed of the Democratic party proclaimed almost absolute free trade." Mr. Logan was a Democrat himself at that time and a strenuous advocate of the Democratic creed (which we do not admit was what he says it was). Was he for "absolute free trade" And yet he has the face to say that the question is one which can be "readily comprehended by any intelligent person." Was intelligent twenty-five years ago? We like what Mr. Logan says concerning friendly arbitration between nations. Also, when he says that a large navy is not necessary to the Uni'ed States we approve, but this last is hardly consistent with his language in the close of his letter. In one place he says:

"I do not consider it necessary that our Government should construct enormous fleets of approved iron-clads and maintain a commensurate body of seamen in order to place ourselves on a war footing with the military and naval powers of Europe." In another place Mr. LOGAN says: rease our navy to a deree enabling us to amply protect our coast lines, our commerce, and to give us a force in foreign waters which shall be a respect-able and proper representative of a country like our own."

["To amply protect" is abominable.] Mr. LCGAN no doubt holds these utterances to be perfectly consistent with each other. He did not mean to be inconsistent. But, as we have said, he is singularly infelicitous in expressing himself.

But here comes Mr. Logan's reference to the one overriding issue of the current

"But the disagreeable fact of the case is that while, theoretically, we are in the en-joyment of a government of the whole peo-ple, practically we are almost as far from it ple, practically we are almost as far from it as we were in the ante-bellum days of the republic. There are but a few leading and indisputable facts which cover the whole statement of the case. In many of the southern States the colored population is in large excess of the white. The colored people are Republicans, as are also a considerable portion of the white people. The remaining portion of the latter are Democrats. In face of this incontestible truth these States invariably return Democratic majorities. In other States of the South the colored people, although not a majority, form a very considerable body of the population, and with the white Republicans are numerically in excess of the Democrats, yet precisely the same political result obtains—the Democratic party invariably carrying the elections."

Colored Politics in Norfolk.—To the Editor of the Post: In this district there is a bitter feeling towards Mr. Libbey for Congress. The colored people think the time has come when they should be recognized in the congressional fight, and they feet sure they can earry the Second district if they nominate the proper man. They have settled down on Mr. C. H. Robinson, a man of great ability, with a strong political following. The colored people intend to nominate him. They are tired of one-man power, and want to run their own mapower, and want to run their own ma-chine. L. C. T. NORFOLK, VA., July 19, 1884.

Mr. Logan says of the southern negroes:

"They must have better educational advantages, and thus be enabled to become the intellectual peers of their white brethren, as many of them undoubtedly already are. A liberal school system should be provided for the rising generation of the south, and the colored people be made as capable of exercising the duties of electors as the white people."

Many of the negroes are undoubtedly the intellectual peers of their white brethren, quoth Mr. Logan. Either he means to say that the whites of the South are inferior to that the whites of the South are inferior to the whites of the North, or else he means that many of the negroes are now the peers of their white brethren of the North. That will be a fine text for stump speakers in the Morth. Northern white men do not ac-

are not voters. We quote:

The Internal Taxes. What does It mean that neither BLAINE nor Logan has a word to say on the sub-ject of the internal taxes? It indicates at least that they were afraid to do so; and, this being so, indicates also that there are many thousands of voters even in the northern States who would gladly vote to abolish all internal taxes if the opportunity to do so were afforded to them. A correspondent of the Petersburg In-dez-Appeal makes a good point as against Mr. BLAINE in the following paragraph. After referring to Mr. BLAINE's boast as to how much territory and how many miltions of people living in this country the which are applicable to the negro. "A class of servile people." People "unable benefits of free trade were extended over, the correspondent proceeds as follows: "Have we in truth that 'free trade' among the States of the United States that Mr. Blaine so delights in? nese are of an alien race, and so are the negroes; and Logan has the same opinion of the negroes that he expresses of the Chinese, as is abundantly proved by his ante-belium record. Most people consider the Chinese far superior to the negro. We have no doubt Logan does.

But here is a sentence which is an insult to the Democratic party and at the same time a downright faischood. Mr. Logan says:

"The Republican party came into existence in a crusade against the Democratic institutions of slavery and polygany."

Mr. Logan was an uncompromising Democrat when "the Republican party came into existence." He knows that he utters a falsehood when he says that polygamy is a "Democratic institution." It is a statement that has no sort of foundation in truth. It is a falsehood out of the whole cloth. We are surprised that any man who wishes to be considered even a respectable politician should put his name to a letter containing an untruth known to be untrue by every intelligent voter in the land.

That is enough of Logan. The people will answer his libels before Jong. Next November he will be consigned

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

The position of your journal is doubtless sustained by the great mass of people who know the difference between free trade and a protective tariff; and the New York San sagely remarks that "no President has ever been elected as a free-trader." The nearest to it was in the election of James K. Polk against the great Harry Clay. In the North the Democrats carried on their banners, "Polk, Dallas, and the Tariff of 1842"—a protective tariff. In the South the Democrats did generally run on a free-trade basis. Besides this delusion, the Plaquenines frauds of Louisiana elected the Democratic taket. When the tariff of 1849, was superseded by the Democratic tariff of 1849, nearly all the northern Democratics in the House of Representatives lost their seats chiefly on the tariff issue, though conjointly with the annexation of Texas with a slave representation. If the southern white people knew their own eternal interests they would not let the tariff or any other secondary matter divide them. The one will be the momentous issue as long as southern Jacobins continue to organize the negro politically against their employers. This is a matter on which white neonle cannot divide, and if they do New iron-works will soon be opened at New fron-works will soon be opened at Kobe, Japan, by a native capitalist, who has engaged several hundred men trained at the Alabama Iron-Works and elsewhere in Tokio. One of the most important questions to come before the Convention will be the advisability of changing the name of the party, which is row the Prohibition and Home-Protection party. Many delegates object to the present name as being too long. Other names, such as the "Reform," "Union," "National," and "Prohibition" party have been suggested as up immediately after the organization of the Convention on Wednesday, and it is thought that a change will be decided upon. The name "Prohibition" party will probably be selected, as that seems to meet with most favor among the delegates. Miss Fishburn's Disappearance. hibition Votes for President.

A special from Pittsburgh (Penn.) dated the 21st says. Delegates to the Prohibition National Convention, which assembles in this city on Wednesday, came in on every train to-day, including advanced guards of the delegations from New York, Illinois, Ohio, Missouri, and California. The full delegations will arrive to-morrow. That from Maryland arrived to night. Its members urge that William Daniels, a lawyer, of Baltimore, be nominated for the presidency. Their wishes are not likely to be gratified, however, as friends of more prominent temperance leaders are making as active a canvass for the honor as if there were a chance for the election of the nominee. Colonel George A. Babcock and Frank McDonald, of Caifornia, have opened hendquarters in the interest of the father of the latter, Dr. R. H. McDonald, of San Francisco. They profess to be encouraged.
